Preparations are being made for the college students and business men, to be held on the military reservation at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., from April 3 to October 31, according to a letter received at headquarters of the National Guard of the District of Columbia from the matter in charge. A conference of army officers at the post there and governors from the twenty states from which recruits are to be drawn and the adjutants general of those states was held there last week. This camp also will receive the recruits from the District of Columbia.

"This southern training camp," says the letter to the local authorities, "is expected to especially appeal to business and professional men who cannot spare time to enroll with the National Guard—to men who feel that they owe it to the nation to take military training to fit themselves for service in furtherance of the plans for preparedness of the national administration.

The military training camps are not intended to conflict with or in any way interfere with the National Guard organization.

Red Cross headquarters has just received the which hesays:

"Permit me to seize this opportunity of again expressing our very high appread to respend on the splendid contributions received through the American Red Cross and add a word of praise for the splendid manner in which these supplies are packed and the intelligent arrangement of the same.

"We have many interesting problems to solve here, as have you, and it is a great pleasure to feel that we are working together for the same fine end."

vantages for this military training camp. The military post grounds comprise nearly 2,000 acres, and imme diately adjoining the camp is the Chickamauga - Chattanooga National Military Park (Chickamauga battle-field), established by Congress as an object lesson for students of military matters." There is a crack regiment of matters. There is a crack regiment of cavalry at the post.

The committee is desirous of keeping an average of 2,000 men in the training camp during the entire period, and they hope to keep it open until October 31. This will require a representation of only 100 men at the camp from each of the twenty states.

Gen. Wood Indorses Idea.

The letter was accompanied by one from Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, U. S. A., manding the Eastern Division, indorsing the training camp idea. In addition there was a form of enlistment in which the recruit agrees to remain at the camp for thirty days unless recalled for unforeseen reasons. The expenses of the camp are $30, including uniform. The camp equipment, rifles, etc., are furnished by the regular army. This amount covers everything but the transportation to and from the camp.

George Higgins Moses, Former Envoy, Lectures on Near Eastern Problems.

Says Many Races, Many Tongues and Clashing Ambitions Make Harmony Impossible.

George Higgins Moses, for many years United States minister to Greece and Montenegro, discussed the strange currents of the "whirlpool of the Balkans" in a lecture delivered before "Whether far, middle or near, the east embodies mystery and contradiction," Mr. Moses said. "From time out of mind it has baffled the study and investigation of the writers, statesmen and the philosophers of the west; and the near east is more mysterious and more alluring to us than the far orient. It has been overrun and ruled by people of every race. Men of our blood have been missing there, and I sometimes think that they could have done more than all the rest—better than Greek, Roman or Slav.

Many Peoples; Many Tongues.

"A dozen peoples, speaking a score of tongues and owning half as many creeds, live within the Balkan peninsula. At times a common fear of op pression, a common religious emotion or a common lust for land has brough some of them together to act in con-cert. However, nothing has ever brought them all together. Speaking of the Dalmatian coast, Mr. Moses said that here the rule of Austria sits all too heavy upon the native peoples. Foreign rulers they have had in numbers, he went on, but they probably have never had a ruler for whom they have felt such cordial hatred as they feel for the venerable Franz Joseph Of Montenegro he said:

The speaker styled Rumania the Argentina of the Balkans, a land of vast and sudden fortunes and of lavish living: Greece he characterized as the modern child directly descended from classic Greece, with all of the old proud Hellenic aspirations still to the fore; and in Constantinople, he concluded, is found the crux of all the Balkan unrest, the center whence the currents of the whirlpool take their Gifford Pinchot, former chief of the United States forest service, will be the principal speaker at a meeting scheduled for Tuesday evening, February 1, at the Public Library, under the auspices of the National Defense League.
